

Idina Menzel

The award-winning actress and singer talks about John Travolta's name flub, her celeb crushes and how she lets it go on the tennis court.

If I weren't an actress or singer, I'd be a professional tennis player, because I have a kick-ass backhand.

The most profound way Frozen has changed my life? My 5-year-old son, Walker, now thinks I'm cool. That's huge!

My biggest pinch-me moments this year were singing the national anthem at the Major League Baseball All-Star Game—2 feet away from Derek Jeter!—and meeting Bono at the Oscars. I screamed like a little girl.

John Travolta may call me Adele Dazeem, but my nickname from my family and friends is actually Dee.

If I could have a beauty do-over, I'd take back all those times in the '80s that I teased my hair up very, very high and used Stiff Stuff hairspray. Not a good look!

I'm not ashamed to admit that I really, really like The Bachelor.

familycircle.com

For more celeb talk, go to familycircle.com/startup.